

VOLUME LV.

JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN, FRIDAY, JULY 7, 1911.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE PENDING TO TRANSFER EVANSVILLE FAIR TO JANESVILLE THIS SEPTEMBER

STORM ON JULY 3 DID MUCH DAMAGE TO BUILDINGS AT CUT-OFF CITY TRACK.

LOCAL DIRECTORS MEET

They Will Consider the Proposition to Have Evansville Men Conduct Fair This Year on Local Grounds.

There is a possibility that Janesville may have a county fair at the grounds now owned by the Park Association, this September, after all. While it will not be the Evansville fair, this year, but the Evansville or Rock County fair, transferred to this city, it will be a fair, and this fact alone will be welcome news to the residents of Janesville and the southern half of the county.

On Monday, July 3, Evansville was visited by a severe windstorm which unroofed many of the buildings on the fair grounds at that city and so damaged the grounds that the local directors of the fair considered the plan of transferring the coming exhibit to Janesville. With this in view, Mr. Van Patten came to Janesville today to confer with the local fair association directors and to place before them the proposition to transfer the fair to Janesville this year.

The proposition as made is that the Evansville directors handle the entire affair just as though the fair was being held in Evansville and that at the end of the week they turn over the state aid given to the fair to the Janesville fair people that will aid both cities materially.

F. E. Lane, secretary of the Industrial and Commercial club, was most enthusiastic over the proposed fair. He said today: "While I know nothing of the nature of the former fair in Evansville, still, anything that will bring Janesville into prominence and bring people here, is what the city wants. I am heartily in favor of such an undertaking and am certain the local fair association will receive the endorsement of the Industrial and Commercial club."

John L. Mohr, who asked about the plan, said he had heard it talked of and thought it would be a good thing. He said: "If the plan goes through we might easily raise three $500 purses for extra events on the three big days of the fair. It would not be hard to secure the subscription for this money after the successful manner in which the recent military celebration was handled. I am sure such a plan would be successful."

Persons acquainted with the grounds and their condition state that the expense of placing them in shape for holding a fair this fall would be trivial compared with the results obtained. Some sheep, swine and cattle stalls would have to be built, horse barns enlarged and otherwise repaired and new horse stalls constructed, but they would be permanent improvements. The other buildings on the grounds could be utilized easily for exhibits.

The track will be in the condition, the horsemen now using the new half mile stretch for training purposes, and a little work would put the mile track into fine condition. The grandstand will hold fourteen hundred persons and is fit for any kind of a crowd, so taking it all in all the grounds could be utilized at the expenditure of a small sum of money.

Mr. Nichols said that if the directors decided to accept the offer of the Evansville fair people that he thought several of the directors would go to Evansville to see if some of the material they had there could not be used on the necessary buildings for the grounds here.

It is safe to say that in view of the recent successful celebration just finished, the Janesville hotel men, retail liquor dealers and business men would gladly subscribe for extra purses for the new and incidental expenses. The two cities combining in a fair would insure its success.

The murder of Labelsky, a King street tailor, occurred on June 21 of last year. He was found in his shop senseless and lying in a pool of blood. The only clue left by the murderer, whose motive was robbery, was a bloody stick with which the crime had been committed. A few weeks later the widow of the murdered man was attacked in her husband's place of business in a manner similar to that which resulted in the death of Labelsky. Duncan was seized outside the store and was recognized by a neighbor as the man in whose hands he had seen the stick with which the tailor was killed, shortly before the murder took place. TEACHER DELEGATES IN SAN FRANCISCO

FIRST ARRIVALS ARE IN GOLDEN GATE CITY FOR BIG CONVENTION OF NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION

MANY NOTED WORKERS

In The Field of Education Are Included Among the Speakers At the Gathering.—Fight Expected Between "Old Order" and Progressives.

San Francisco, Cal., July 7.—San Francisco is rapidly filling with delegates and visitors to the forty-ninth annual convention of the National Educational Association, some thirty thousand of whom, representing all branches of educational work from the kindergarten to the university, will make this city their mecca during the coming week. The national headquarters were opened this morning at the St. Francis Hotel by Secretary Irwin Shepard of Winona, Minn., who, with a large force of assistants, will be in continuous session save during sleeping hours, until the delegates have gotten into working order the first of the week. The officers expect that all records for attendance will be broken by the present convention. A vast army of visitors is already here and every arriving train is adding hundreds to the crowd. All of the teachers are proud in their praise of the local arrangements for handling the visitors and for their entertainment. Each train is met by members of the reception committee, who pilot the visitors to the headquarters for registration or assignment, or show them to their rooms if accommodations have been secured in advance. The business section of the city is decorated with flags and bunting and signs bidding the N. E. A. welcome are displayed everywhere.

The first general session of the association, in the Greek Theatre of the University of California, will not be held until Monday afternoon, but the convention will be preceded tomorrow by meeting of standing committees and several of the affiliated organizations. At the formal opening, Monday afternoon, addresses of welcome will be delivered by Governor Johnson of California, Mayor McCarthy of San Francisco and President Wheeler of the University of California. Responses for the visitors will be made by Dr. Elmer E. Brown, late United States Commissioner of Education and who is soon to enter upon his new duties as Chancellor of New York University. Mrs. Eliza Flagg Young of Chicago, president of the association, will preside at the session and deliver the opening address. Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford Junior University, will be another noted speaker at the initial session. Among the speakers of prominence in the educational world who will be included among the speakers of the week are Carroll G. Peck, superintendent of schools of Milwaukee; James H. Van Sickle, superintendent of schools of Baltimore; Joseph Swain, president of Swarthmore College; James H. Baker, president of the University of Colorado; Robert J. Aley, president of the University of Maine; Samuel Avery, chancellor of the University of Nebraska; Robert Leo Jones, State superintendent of public instruction of Tennessee; Francis G. Blair, State superintendent of Illinois; H. B. Brown, president of Valparaiso University; George B. Cook, State superintendent of Arkansas; Thomas C. Mott, superintendent of schools of Richmond, Ind.; J. W. Crabtree, Nicholas Murray Butler, Nebraska; State superintendent of Missouri; J. B. Phillips, superintendent of schools of Birmingham; W. E. Harmon, State superintendent of Montana; Thomas F. Kane, president of the University of Washington; C. A. Dunaway, president of the University of Montana, and P. L. Campbell, president of the University of Oregon.

From an instructive viewpoint the program promises one of the most successful conventions in the history of the organization. Aside from this, however, the convention is likely to prove of more interest to the membership than any of the annual meetings of recent years. For several years the membership has been alienated from itself into two rival factions, whose differences have been accentuated at the Boston convention last year. Since then the war clouds have loomed blacker and blacker and all signs now point to a bitter storm which may greatly affect the future of the big teachers' organization.

It will be a fight against the "old order" led by the combined forces of the teachers of Illinois and New York. The main issue, and the one which is expected to bring up the most serious opposition, is the proposal to abolish the national council, which is vested with the power of recommending appropriations and fixing the expenditures of funds. The council has fought against progressive methods for the association and it is also hinted that the expenditures have been recklessly and imprudently made.

LODI FARMER DEAD FROM HEAT EFFECTS

Lodi, Wis., July 7.—While working in the hay field, Frank Leinford, aged 50, a farmer, was overcome by the heat and died without regaining consciousness.

CEMENT COMPANY TO MOVE THEIR PLANT TO THIS CITY SOON

Keystone Cement Construction Company of Waupun Will Locate in Janesville at an Early Date.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Keystone Cement Construction and Manufacturing company in Waupun, it was voted to remove the plant to Janesville, which will be made the principal place of operation, and the entire production of the factory will be made and shipped from here.

The new company will locate its plant on the site of the Janesville Cement Shingle company's factory. Entirely new buildings will be erected and it is expected that they will break ground for the same within a very short time.

The company has been considering the move to Janesville for some time past and the new organization will bring a thriving manufacturing plant into the city. The company manufactures and handles all kinds of cement products and also conducts a construction department similar to a building and loan association.

Word of the decision to move to this city has been received by F. E. Lano, secretary of the Industrial and Commercial club, with whom the secretary of the company, H. W. Granger, has been corresponding for some time. Mr. Granger was in the city recently where he looked over the ground, which impressed him most favorably as to the location of the plant at the directors' meeting.

The company is capitalized at $100,000 which enables them to carry on the construction work. The manufacturing department has proven successful, both as to quality of products and financial returns on the investment, while the construction department is a more recent attachment which is just being tried out.

It is the plan of the company to sell between $20,000 to $25,000 worth of stock in this city in order to interest the citizens of Janesville actively in the enterprise and at the same time give a strong home prestige and a greater degree of co-operation.

On their removal to Janesville the company plans to branch out and will send construction gangs all over the state, erecting houses and buildings. They will employ a large force of men and will probably operate both day and night.

Janesville was successful in securing this company to move its entire operating plant here through the efforts of Secretary Lano. It was the original intention of the company to merely ship the raw material from Janesville to another point where the actual manufacturing operations would be done. They were persuaded, however, to locate their entire factory here and make Janesville the permanent base of operations.

CROPS HIT HARD BY EXTREME HEAT

Lack of Rain and High Temperature May Cause Advance in Foodstuffs Cost.

Drought and heat extending over the last several days have placed crops in such condition that fears for a successful harvest have been aroused among the most optimistic crop experts. The heavy rain in the grain market on Wednesday is only one indication of the gravity of the situation as reports arriving from the threatened districts of the country give practically no encouragement.

The situation has been followed to some extent by the drop in temperature which took place during the night and slight rains which have been reported in parts of the threatened districts. However, the conditions are still serious.

The opening in the Chicago grain pit, Wednesday, was the wildest in the history of the exchange, corn advancing 5 1/2 cents. A portion of this advance, however, was lost before the close. In Kansas City still greater advances were quoted in all grains.

Live stock arriving at the various stockyards in poor condition, owing to the extreme temperature, and most of the sales were forced. Pasture will suffer heavily and the price of meat and milk will undoubtedly take a big advance.

Hurt Strawberry Crop. The Wisconsin strawberry crop has been hit unusually hard. The berries have ripened so rapidly that it has been impossible to market them in time to prevent their spoiling and from Jayfield county, alone, a loss of $25,000 is already reported.

Hope is still held in Iowa for saving the corn crop owing to a slight rain which fell there, but more rain must come at once to give any great advantage.

In Oklahoma the governor has ordered the churches to stop praying for rain, as he fears the seriousness of the situation will be a drawback to immigration to the state if true conditions become known. Great losses have been suffered there by fire, and without rain it is believed that nothing but an act of providence can prevent further losses by flames that will reach great magnitude.

Fear An Ice Famine. Ice companies in the state are also feeling a shortage. In cities where natural lake and river ice is used the supply is running low, while in cities where the artificial product is used the reserve supply has disappeared and the factories are running double time and still are unable to meet the increased demands.

Grain in Minnesota and the Dakotas has already been hit and according to latest reports thousands of acres will not fill. A repetition of conditions several years ago, when the farmers burned their fields when the grain failed to develop, is likely to occur.

According to C. M. Hemm of the United States department of agriculture, head of the office of farm management of District 11, comprising Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the eastern Dakotas, the drought now affecting the state and the ravages of old worms have damaged the corn crop and shortened the hay crop in this state and for that reason farmers should plant millet to insure an ample supply of winter feed.

A drought condition is prevailing over large areas of Wisconsin and adjoining states and the indications are strong that a great many farmers will be short of both hay and feed.

Many will probably attempt to meet the situation by selling a portion of their live stock, but this would be unwise since to unload so many half-starved animals is sure to bring about a drop in prices and a consequent greater loss to the seller.

The farmer who faces a shortage of feed because of the drought should at once need a catch crop which will enable him to carry over his herd until next season. For the northern states there is no better general purpose catch crop than millet. This may be sown as late as July 10 with reasonable assurance of success. Generally speaking, German millet is the best. For hay none of the millets should be allowed to mature.

Take Note, Ye Housewives!

Queen Mary's pantry at Windsor is said to contain the most valuable collection of tableware in the world. Every reign since Queen Elizabeth's has contributed to the collection, which is stored in two rooms. The walls are lined with cases made of plate glass and mahogany, with similar cases occupying the center of each room. The most imposing thing in these two rooms is the dinner service of solid gold used only for dinners of the highest state. There is a table of solid silver three feet in length. A rose water fountain of silver has a dome supported on columns around which are grouped horses and hounds. A silver gilt flagon almost a yard high is said to have been saved from the Armada. A pair of bellows mounted in silver and gold was once the property of Nell Gwyn. There is a massive pair of firetongs in solid silver made for Charles II. and a huge punch bowl was contributed by George IV.

The Night of One Man.

The dwellers in Kensington's most charming and Old World square can now sleep at night without fear that the too enterprising "flat" builders will encroach on the green turf and greener trees of Edwardes square and turn it into a wilderness of bricks and mortar. For—and this is where the Edwardes square comes in—there still exists the old charter, which provides that so long as there is a male resident in the square the property must be left intact. This is a great joy to the dwellers thereon, many of whom have promptly proceeded to become absolute owners of their houses—Lady's Pictorial.

CARNIVAL FAKIR RELEASED TODAY

Andy Dennis, Accused of Stealing Ten Dollar Bill, Released Because Alleged Victim Would Not Prosecute.

Andy Dennis, itinerant fakir who accompanied the carnival here and elsewhere during the three days celebration, was released this morning from the city lock-up and ordered to leave town immediately.

Dennis was locked up yesterday morning by Officer Sam Brown, at the request of Billy Williams of Beloit, who complained that Dennis had stolen a ten dollar bill from him. According to Williams, Dennis, who was drinking with several of the carnival people in a local saloon yesterday, stole the money from a pile of cash which Williams emptied out of the bag onto the bar.

Williams immediately notified Officer Brown, who arrested the man and took him to the police station. Dennis was searched at the station, but the money was not found on him and it was thought he had slipped the bill to one of his partners. A telephone message was sent to Mr. Williams this morning, but he refused to make a complaint against the man, saying that the money was all right.

Dennis said he intended to join the carnival at Waukesha.

IN A RUN-DOWN NERVOUS CONDITION

Half the People of United States Are Shown To Be So By Statistics.

The rush and bustle of American life is a constant strain on both mind and body. Gradually the human machine wears out under the unusual strain and nervous debility results. Statistics show that half the people of the United States are in a run-down, nervous condition.

A man or woman in this condition can get little happiness or success out of life. They feel tired all the time, have no energy or ambition and are gloomy, timid and despondent. They do not sleep well or eat well or feel well and life instead of being a pleasure seems more like a burden.

Are you one of these half sick, listless, nervous people. If you are you know that there is a tonic now being sold that has brought back the old energy and pleasure in life to thousands who have tried it.

The name of the tonic is Tona Vita. It is being introduced in this country by a number of physicians. It has been pronounced the greatest medicine ever before sold to the public. In each city there is an agent for Tona Vita who will refund the purchase price if the tonic fails to give you complete and entire satisfaction. Let Tona Vita build you up and bring back your strength and vitality. You will be astonished how quickly it acts. The very first dose will convince you what a great medicine it is.

Lee's Rhubarb Laxative is used as an assistant to Tona Vita in cases of chronic constipation. It is a family medicine pleasant to the taste, containing the splendid laxative qualities of rhubarb. Ask your physician about rhubarb and see if he does not tell you it is the best possible laxative for children.

The Smith Drug Co. have the agency for these two great medicines in Janesville.

Profit in Growing Vegetables.

In a report published by the department of commerce and labor on the farming carried on by Italians in Himmonton, N. J., we have such items as a net profit of $160 from a quarter acre of strawberries; $5,000 net profit in two years from 50 acres of raspberries, by an Italian hardly able to speak or write English; $3,000 net profit on dewberries and blackberries, acreage not given; a father and son bought a farm (acreage not stated) for $2,000, leaving a mortgage of $500. In one season, 1908, they paid the mortgage and all their living expenses and saved $300 in addition. An Italian laborer in the limits of Greater New York city made as much as $1,000 net profit from little more than an acre and a half of land last year, growing cabbages for the market.

Punctuation in Piano Playing.

A joke is going the rounds of the press about the girl whose music teacher wished to compliment her but of whom he could only say that she played the rests excellently. This is, however, real praise of a sort, for it is not every young student of music who is careful about playing the rests well. Indeed a great many players seem to forget that the rests are just as much of the piece as is the punctuation in a sentence. Nowadays people do not put in so much punctuation as they used to do, but the pauses in the voice are there just the same and are readily understood by good readers, and always regarded. The rests in music are like the pauses in reading that are needed to give expression to the sentences. If the player slights the rests or extends them too long the whole effect of the musical sentence is spoiled.

LINK AND PIN. ENGINEER DUNNE ON ROAD TO RECOVERY

Injuries Received in Dardwell Wreck Were of Minor Nature.—On Duty Within A Month.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Engineer James Dunne, who was injured in the recent wreck at Dardwell, is now at his home at Madison, and is improving very rapidly. His escape from the wreck with his life was little short of miraculous and all those who saw the condition of his engine are still marveling at that. Mr. Dunne could have escaped from the wreckage with only comparatively slight injuries. One of his ankles and his shoulder were wrenched and these are proving the most troublesome for him at present. He is able to walk about the house with the aid of a cane, but the injury to his shoulder renders his right arm almost useless for some days.

It was feared at first that the sustained internal injuries, the effects of which would be felt within a short time after the accident, when the excitement of the shock had subsided, but fortunately no such effects have been felt by Mr. Dunne. His lungs and chest still trouble him slightly as a result of his inhaling steam, and also from his plunge when thrown from his cab to the gravel beside the track. For some time after his terrible experience Mr. Dunne felt dazed, due to the shock and the nervous strain, but his condition in this respect is now the best, and both he and his friends expect that he will have fully recovered and be ready for duty within the next month.

Engineers A. Mahoney, W. McAuliffe and J. Higgins, who have been running extra on the Mineral Point division, are laying off for a few days.

Engineer Schieker, who has been off duty during the last week reported for duty this morning along with Fireman Martin went out on the Mineral Point run with No. 165.

Engineer Walter and Fireman Kirkpatrick went out with train 91 on the Mineral Point division this morning.

Chicago & Northwestern.

Twenty-six extra passenger coaches were used on the Northwestern line to accommodate the crowds that came here for the celebration on the Fourth. On the same evening these extra cars were sent out in the same packed condition to take the visitors home. Most of the cars were sent out in a second section to 523 and another to 504 and the remainder were doubled on the regular trains.

The carnival troupe and their paraphernalia were taken out yesterday on an extra, containing eighteen cars. This extra went on the Madison division, en route to Waukegan.

"SQUEEZER" DAVEY IN BAD CONDITION

Man Whose Jaw is Broken Lodged in City Lockup and is in Need of Medical Care.

Hugh Davey, known by his nickname as "Squeezor," is lodged in the city lockup today after escaping from the county hospital where he was sent to receive medical aid. About a week ago he had his jaw broken and the wounds bled quite profusely. He was locked up at night in the police station and it was feared he might bleed to death, but the flow of blood was stanching and he was taken care of at the county hospital. Some time early this morning, he became tired of the institution and escaped through a window. Davey's condition is quite serious and it is a question as to what can be done with him, as the authorities at the county farm are not desirous of caring for him. It is said that he is on the verge of the delirium tremens.

His jaw and mouth are in such a condition as to require the services of someone to look after him. Davey has relatives in this city, who will probably see that his needs are attended to.

Fred Murphy, another famous patient, was yesterday sent to the county hospital. Murphy had a bad case of the "snakes" and it was feared they might prove fatal, but he was slightly better today.

Do Not Dwell in Harmony.
At Sutton, in Norfolk, a mavis and a blackbird have started housekeeping on the co-operative principle, laying their eggs in the same nest. The same pair of birds tried a similar experiment last year, with dire results to the young mavis, the young blackbirds having gently coaxed them out of the nest into the cold world. But the enterprising parents apparently insist on giving the scheme a fair trial.

All are to be men of genius in their degree—rivulets or rivers, it does not matter, so that the souls be clear and pure; not dead souls, encompassing dead heaps of things, known and numbered, but running waters in the sweet wilderness of things unnumbered and unknown, conscious only of the living banks, on which they partly refresh, and partly reflect the flowers, and so, pass on.—Hudson: The Stones of Venice.

The Question of Personality

By REV. HUGH T. KERR

Pastor Fullerton Ave. Presbyterian Church, Chicago

HIS FAILINGS.

His failings are exclusively his. He owns them but seldom owns up to them. Some are due to his immaturity and will disappear with the passing of months and months and weeks and freckles and gawling feathers—unless they are detained by some foolish older person who insists that passing phases of his development are permanent forms of devilment and succeed in turning the changing hues into fast colors, all red. That boy showed his quality who defined a hypocrite as "a boy who comes to school with a smile on his face." When the nervous Sunday school teacher said to the mischievous lad, "Tommy, I'm afraid I won't see you in heaven," it was due entirely to his sense of humor, that had not yet gained its social perspective and propriety, that he asked, without hesitation, "why, what have you been doing?"

Some are due to his being an immature human, some due to his being an immature man and, in the latter case, will not slough off at all. We will have to classify them as among his unavoidable limitations not to be outlawed, but to be harnessed up and put to work, drawing his personality through boys and over mountains. We are not to look on them as hopeless liabilities but as productive endowments. And yet they will always be idiosyncrasies, if not faults.

Some of his faults are imaginary, exist only in the mind of those who look upon these aberrations of his boyish nature as streams of vice and as indication of hopeless depravity. The best things in him may come out just that way. That effescence is designed to be a relief to him and a recreation to the family. The only alternative of effescence is fermentation. Imagine him had and you are sure to tell him so. And there is a very accommodating suggestibility in a boy. He is usually slow to accept the rating he is given, when he is well berated, yet he often unconsciously lives down to the reputation he is given in his home.

But many of his failings are real, whether due to inheritance or bad general environment or bad treatment. In almost every case it is not his fault at first. Dr. Merrill is almost exactly right in saying that the boy is all right and that the problem of the bad boy is the problem of those who have him in charge. The parents ought to confess the handicap they put on him in giving him their dispositions and then get to work to save him from the natural consequences of it, till he can be led to choose something higher and better for himself.

And if his inherited disposition is not so hopelessly bad, he may be tempted into badness by the public. The city life is in an environment created for business purposes and not with a view to his interests. Every fault of a boy seems to be appended to in the average city, with its crowded homes and poor playgrounds, and the appeals to both his love of unwholesome pleasure and of money with which to pay for them. Sometimes he is suddenly overwhelmed in the results of some blunder that he never meant to be a crime which is construed as a crime and he is made a criminal. A Chicago boy stole a pair of shoes which he thought he needed, was taken to the justice's court in a patrol wagon, tried, bound over to the grand jury, kept in the county jail 12 days in company with hardened criminals and was treated as a criminal while waiting to go before the grand jury.

There are crime ages, when every boy finds it easier to do wrong, and a surprising amount of outside assistance in doing it. The running away age is from six to eight, the lawless age from eight to twelve, and then the sense of law begins to awaken in response to the laws of the gang. During those critical days, it is criminal and often fatal to be frillable with him. His boyhood weaknesses and temptations—gluttony, vanity and often laziness. All the crudities and contradictions make him more open to evil. Imitation and imagination and, later, the development of the sex instincts all begin on the side of temptation; and they are, unless he is well cared for.

And yet nature has made provision for his protection and a special providence aids those who are responsible for him. He has no reinforcing memories of former victories, though he is accumulating them, yet his father has them and holds them for his benefit. He has a yearning for companionship and his father has been elected to supply him with all his needs.

Sometimes the sense of being injured is so acute and so just, he is borne beyond all self-control and eventually becomes a hardened man, if not a criminal. When some evil deed sweeps him off his feet, he only needs some one to help him back to self-respecting, yet self-detrusting, purity. He needs to be told of his virtues and supported by an admirable and contagious example. If the home were half way right, also the schools, also the public in its provisions for the physical and mental and artistic and ethical welfare of children, there would be no bad boys, for heredity would soon become as correct as environment.

Human Nature.

There are some natures nothing can corrupt, as there are others nothing can enable.—G. H. Hardy.

TEXT—Where art thou?—Genesis 3. This question whispered by God into the heart of man is the first and the last question of life. After we have traced the working of God's hand in creation and beheld the fashioning of sun and moon and stars and seen the furnishing of the earth with cattle and every creeping thing and beheld Eden blossoming with love until sin's sting shriveled innocence as in a fire, then God speaks out of the silence of his own omnipotence and demands an answer from the man into whom he has breathed the breath of a divine life: "Where art thou?"

It lifts man out from the rest of God's creation. Not of the heaven or the earth or the sea or the air does he ask this question. Not of the birds or beasts of the field. They are part and parcel of a great dumb creation that works the will of him who ordered their coming and determines their going.

Not so with man. He stands as sentinel. Into his hands dominion is given. He is the part of the great creation procession. He is the master, the arbiter, the spectator. It is the first question asked in the beginning of worlds. It will be the last question asked when the worlds are rolled up as a scroll and all things pass away. Then, too, the question will be heard: "Where art thou?"

How diverse and different have been the answers. We have heard many stories. Even the Bible tells us two stories. On the one hand, we are told that he stands where the shadows come and go. He is as a vapor, a dream, a sleep, a story, a tale that is told, water spilled upon the ground, a thread of the weaver that is cut, a flower that faded, grass that withered, a shepherd's tent that is removed. Then, too, we are told that he is clothed in light and immortality as with a garment and crowned with glory and honor.

"Here lies a man whose name was writ in water," so runs the epitaph on the stone of one whose name is still remembered. What is man? What is personality? Physicians tell us that the body changes every seven years. Once we were children, now we are men and women, yet we believe we are the same now that we were then, with all the changes akin to the death of the physical.

There have been two of us, perhaps more. One of the past, one of the present and still one of the men that is to be. Which is the real Paul, the one that breathed out slaughter or the one that worshiped at Christ's feet? Which is the true Jesus, the one that listened to the call of Jesus or the one that betrayed him with a kiss? You remember how Oliver Wendell Holmes pictures three men in each man—the man that one thinks he is, the man his friends think him to be and the man whom God sees, the real man.

Yet through it all there is one continuing personality. The Adam of Eden is linked with the Adam without the gate. It belongs to the realm of the soul, the mind, the memory. "Son remember," is the verdict of heaven and the doom of hell. John Quincy Adams at the extreme limit of old age when asked about his health replied: "Thank you, John Quincy Adams is quite well. But the house in which he lives is dilapidated. It is tottering. Times and seasons have made their mark upon it. It is well-nigh worn out. Some day soon I shall move out. But John Quincy Adams is quite well, sir, I thank you."

God's voice is ever calling to the consciences of men. He is ever searching to discover the best that is in man and to reawaken the hope that has been buried. A good painter depicts the best. A friend viewing a portrait, of his friend by Sargent said it looked like the portrait of a dissipated man. The man said yes, and that's what I have in me which I have always battled and fought and conquered. Said his friend, "It is that better man, the victor, the conqueror, that the painter should have painted."

Yes, and God always calls us to our best and sees far off the man who ought to be. In Simon he sees Peter. In Saul he sees Paul. In Jacob he sees the wrestling prince with God. God is not a cynic hunting the Disgenes for the doubtful discovery of a man. God is like the shepherd who knows the sheep are lost. He is like the father who knows the son is better than he pretends. He is like the lover of the coin who knows its value and has faith in its recovery. So with the Lord he takes and he restores.

Find him ambassadors whom men deny. Who men nor mighty for his saints he chooses. No, such as John or John or I. It is bad business to try to hide from God. Personality receives its true perfection only in God. He is the atmosphere in which life flourishes and abides. He is the light in which the flower of a right life blooms. He is the country in which the true fruit of faith comes to a beautiful maturity. We are all in his great garden. He still walks its path and calls for its beauty.

Why should we hide? To see his smile means heaven for us. To miss him is to miss the best. There is only one safe hiding place, and that is the Rock of Ages, the Lover of the souls of men. "In him is life and the life is the light of men."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS MEET AT ATLANTIC CITY

Attendance to Greatest in History of Organization—Many Prominent Men to Speak.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 7.—The attendance upon the twenty-fifth international convention of the Christian Endeavor society which opened here last evening and which will continue in session until July 12, is the largest that was ever present at any previous meeting of the organization.

That the most sanguine predictions of those in charge of the great convention have been surpassed is jubilantly admitted at headquarters, and when a reason for the vast attendance is sought the officials point with pride to the long and interesting program devised for the delegates' instruction and amusement, and the list of prominent speakers who have signified their intention of addressing the delegates and visitors. Among the latter are: President Taft, Speaker Champ Clark, former vice-president Charles W. Fairbanks, Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, Booker T. Washington, Commander Eva Booth of the Salvation Army, Rev. E. J. Horsfield, president of the British Christian Endeavor Union; Rev. G. Fukuda of Japan, Rev. H. I. Marshall of Burma, Rev. P. S. Gray of New Zealand, John Wainmaker of Philadelphia, and a score or more of prominent pastors and specialists in Christian Endeavor work from many denominations and missions from foreign lands.

Last evening the convention was opened on the million dollar pier by an address from President Francis E. Clark, D.D., LL.D., prayer and praise services, and a musical program, which included some special music by the Hawaiian delegates and the Washington chorus. Among those who spoke were John T. Spruill, president of the New Jersey State Christian Endeavor Union; Rev. Howard B. Crowe, D.D., vice-president of the board of trustees, and William Shaw, general secretary of the society. Tonight President Taft will deliver his address.

SURPRISE IN DYNAMITE CASE.

Defense Challenges Jurisdiction of Los Angeles Court.

Los Angeles, July 7.—The defense in the McNamara alleged dynamite conspiracy case sprung a surprise when John J. McNamara, the accused Indiana labor leader, and his brother, James B. McNamara, were called into Judge Bordwell's department of the supreme court.

Both men were summoned to plead to 19 charges of murder, the result of the destruction of the Times newspaper plant on October 1, 1910. In addition, John J. McNamara was expected to plead to the charge that he had conspired to destroy the Llewellyn iron works. Instead he challenged the jurisdiction of the court, claiming that it had no right to exact a plea or to try him on either the 19 charges of murder or the Llewellyn iron works indictment, because he was extradited from Indianapolis not for murder, but for alleged dynamiting.

The prosecution met the move of the defense with a motion to disallow the plea to jurisdiction.

PRISON FOR FUSE PRESIDENT.

Frank G. Jones Sentenced to Indeterminate Term at Ionia, Mich.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 7.—Judge William J. Stuart of the superior court sentenced President Frank G. Jones of the bankrupt American Electric Fuse company of Muskegon to Ionia prison on an indeterminate sentence of four to fourteen years, with a recommendation of ten years. Jones, who confessed to the directors of the company that he had secured between $500,000 and $720,000 on fraudulent paper, was arrested on complaint of the Old National bank of this city for forging a check for $5,482.64.

ITALY SCOURGED BY CHOLERA.

Censored Telegrams at Vienna Tell of Seriousness of Disease.

Vienna, July 7.—Censored telegrams from Italy printed here report cholera throughout the southern seaports of Italy. In Palermo there are 100 cases daily, with an average of 50 deaths. Conditions at Messina are also very bad.

These dispatches say the Italian government denies there is any cholera in any of its seaports, declaring the death lists are no greater than in former years. Travelers, however, bring alarming reports.

GATES' CONDITION IS CRITICAL.

Has Relapse and Lapses into Comatose State in Paris.

Paris, July 7.—John W. Gates, the American financier, is in a critical condition and has lapsed into a state of coma.

Several operations for the removal of tumor of the throat, which were performed by Doctor Doyen were considered trivial, but the patient suffered an attack of kidney and liver trouble while convalescing and to this attack is due his present critical condition.

Troops to Leave Texas.

Washington, July 7.—General orders were issued by the war department to all troops of the maneuver division at San Antonio, Tex., to return to their home stations. A few regiments will remain to patrol the border.

Phonograph's Popularity.

The exports of phonographs and records from the United States have doubled in two years.

REVOLT IN CUBA THREATENED.

Uprising Predicted in Oriente and Pinar del Rio Provinces.

Havana, July 7.—Alarming reports of revolutionary sentiment are being brought from the provinces. Discontent is said to be rampant in the rural guard and an uprising in Oriente and Pinar del Rio is freely predicted.

The sudden show of wealth of President Gomez is believed to have caused the unrest. The Havana newspapers stated two weeks ago that he assumed the presidency with $89,000 in debts and pointed to the fact that he had purchased at a cost of $135,000 a site upon which he intends to erect a magnificent home.

The action of Gomez in publishing a statement of his finances to refute the allegations has impressed his enemies as an attempt to cover his guilt.

WOMEN ACT AS TRENCH DIGGERS

Schenectady Italians Work With Shovels in Strikers' Places.

Schenectady, N. Y., July 7.—Women have taken the place of striking excavators in a Warren street trench, where work on a sewer is progressing. Strikers became demonstrative when five women began to uphove dirt with picks and shovels, but the women received protection from the police. Men diggers cannot be obtained. The women, who are Italians, receive 50 cents an hour as strike-breakers and are doing satisfactory work.

AUTO TURNS OVER, ONE KILLED.

Newspaper Man Is Dead—Companion and Chauffeur Are Injured.

Cannonsburg, Pa., July 7.—George Brown, a newspaper man of New York, was killed and Carl Palmer, sporting editor of the Washington (Pa.) Record, and C. Guthrie, chauffeur, were seriously injured when their automobile turned turtle near here. Brown's neck was broken.

Two Die in Mexico Riot.

Mexico City, Mex., July 7.—Two persons were killed and five others seriously injured during a charge by the police on a mob near the street car barns near Indianilla, just outside this city.

Blind Conservatism.

There is always a certain mean-ness in the argument of conservatism, joined with a certain superiority in its fact. It affirms because it holds. Its fingers clutch the fact, and it will not open its eyes to see a better fact.—Emerson.

Camelshair Brushes.

Camelshair brushes are not made of the hair of camels but of hairs from the tails of Russian and Siberian squirrels.

'Too Sharp a Dividing Line.'

Elder (discussing the new minister's probation discourse)—In my opinion, he wasna justified in dividing folk into the sheep and the goats. I wadna just say, Jamie, that I was among the unco guld, and I wadna say that you were among the unco bad. So whur do we come in? He'll no do for us, Jamie. We'll no vote for him.—Punch.

Socialism in German City.

There is carried on by the German municipality of Freiburg a pawnshop, an insurance business, a theater, several restaurants and a newspaper, as well as the schools. A seat can be procured at the opera in that city for nine cents and supper afterward for six cents. The authorities also own a cemetery, in which the citizens can be interred cheaply.

A Secret of Happiness.

Let us sometimes live—be it only for an hour, and though we must lay all else aside—to make others smile. The sacrifice is 'only' in appearance; no one finds more pleasure for himself than he who knows how, without ostentation, to give himself that he may procure for those around him a moment of forgetfulness and happiness.—Charles Wagner.

Cutton, the head of the firm, is an Edgerton man, born and reared here, and is considered one of the best posted men in tobacco in this section. For many years the firm has conducted a successful business here under the management of Mr. Cutton and with the present change as to how or why the change comes about. The open air band concert will be given Saturday evening as usual, beginning at eight o'clock.

NEW BUILDING AT GREEN COUNTY FARM

New Dormitory For Men Is Under Construction At Green County
Poor Farm.—Will Be
Modern Structure.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Monroe, July 7.—A new building for men is under construction at the Green county poor farm, the old dormitory having been condemned by the state board. The new structure will be of reinforced concrete throughout, with the exception of the outside wall, which will be built of white brick to correspond with the building adjoining.

The building will be ventilated by fan system, each room having separate ventilating flues and the fan heating system will be supplemented by direct steam radiators.

The floors will be of concrete slab construction with cement tile surfaces. Wood will be eliminated as much as possible in the construction, making the building fire proof.

Particular stress will be made on the lighting of the building. The windows will be so arranged as to have the sun shine in every room in the house during some part of the day, and large bay windows will permit the patients to take sun baths.

The structure will comfortably accommodate sixty-eight, and when completed will rank among the finest asylum buildings in the country.

Mrs. Ray Fitzgibbons and little daughter returned this morning from a month's visit in Virginia, Minn. They were met at Madison by Mr. Fitzgibbons.

Need Generous Atmosphere.

The more freely sympathy and affection are extended, and the more gladly they are welcomed, the more they bless mankind. Their very life depends upon a generous atmosphere of both giving and taking. Coldness, reserve, suspicion, pride, kill them as the biting frost kills them tender plants.

A SMART LITTLE BLOUSE HINT FOR FALL.

In the treasury of a June bride was this dainty blouse which was designed to accompany a coat and skirt suit of self striped black mohair made with black braid and black buttons. The blouse is of white satin velled with black net, a bit of vivid green satin reaching up over the net at back and front. Shoulder straps and pinnings are also of green satin, the shoulder straps passing under the net. The square yoke at the front is of green chiffon edged with a piping of the green satin, but the buttons are black. Yoke and cuffs are of white flax lace piped with green.

The Pursuit of Beauty.
I know not that if all things had been equally beautiful we could have received the idea of beauty at all, or if we had, certainly it had become a matter of indifference to us, and of little thought, whereas through the beneficent ordaining of degrees in its manifestation, the hearts of men are stirred by its occasional occurrence in its noblest form, and all their energies are awakened in the pursuit of it, and endeavor to arrest it or recreate it for themselves.—Ruskin: Modern Painters.

Our First Families.
Science tells us that the Tipulidae, or Daddy Long-legs, were the original inhabitants of North America, and that they occupied Colorado in vast numbers during the tertiary period. It is understood that the descendants of Colonial families have protested against this infringement of their rights.—English exchange.

Its Degree.
Mrs. Blowit—Are you planning an expensive gown? Mrs. Knowit—Well, it will take at least five courses and his favorite dishes to get it.—Harper's Bazar.

Why Father Goes to Lodge.
"Father sometimes goes to the lodge," Ewing Herbert explains, "because he is a good deal more important there than he can ever hope to be at home."

Chinese Still At It.
Congressman Murdock, the insurgent who instigated all of the time during the last years of the Cannon regime, says that after reading a lot about Chinese tonga and their murderous work, he went to bed and dreamed of them. In the morning, as he looked over his morning paper, he found himself murmuring: "Those Chinamen are still at it." The headline which attracted his attention was:
"Shot Wife of Chum."

Only Married Men Count.
In Corean marriage is even more important and essential for a man than it is for a woman as, until a man be wed, he is a being of no account. If a father has not selected wives for his sons ere they reach the age of twenty he is considered worthless and neglectful.

Plumb Line into Porto Rico.
There are places where the direction of a plumb line is not vertical. Irregularities of density in the crust of the globe may produce this phenomenon. A remarkable instance in point was found in the island of Porto Rico, where the deviation from the vertical is so great that in mapping the island the northern and southern coast lines, as shown in the older maps, had each to be moved inward half a mile.—Scientific American.

A Barberous Idea.
In Chicago a voice has been raised against the cat's whiskers, which are alleged to carry microbes. The future may develop barbers for cats, for it is not to be supposed that in this age of enlightenment and fade cats will be permitted to go about with microbe-laden whiskers.—Judge.

BITTERNESS AT SEAL HEARING.

Witnesses Shake Their Fists and Call Each Other Perjurer.

Washington, July 7.—A scene suggesting some that have occurred in the Camorra trial in Italy, unfolded in the proceedings of the house committee investigating the charges that the once great seal herd of the Pribilof Islands is being wantonly slaughtered by agents of the United States government. Prof. Henry W. Elliott, fur seal expert, and United States Fish Commissioner Bowers, who have been in controversy about the seals, confronted each other before the committee, shook their fists and exchanged a series of lively epithets.

Professor Elliott, concluding the reading of a statement, declared that Commissioner Bowers had "perjured himself" before this committee.

"You are a self-confessed perjurer yourself," retorted Commissioner Bowers, adding that he could prove the charge.

CONTROL BOAT BY WIRELESS.

German Experts Succeed in Test of Rudderless, Crewless Craft.

Berlin, July 7.—Experiments which have been going on for several days with a rudderless, crewless motor boat on Lake Wannsee have proved remarkably successful.

The craft was towed out two miles in the lake and its movements afterward were directed altogether by means of wireless apparatus ashore.

The boat threaded its way skilfully through numerous craft without the slightest accident. The inventor of the crewless boat is Christian Wirth, a school teacher.

OTTAWA ROWING CREW WINNER.

Hendon-on-Thames, England, July 7.—The Ottawa Rowing club's crew beat the redoubtable Belgian crew of Ghent, who won the trophy in 1909, in the third heat for the grand challenge cup.

PLOT FOR REVOLT UNEARTHED?

American Syndicate Plans Revolution Against Guatemala's President.

Mexico City, July 7.—An investigation here is said to have unearthed a plot against President Cabrera of Guatemala. It is said an American syndicate is behind the plot and that Francisco I. Madero does not oppose it. The intention is to ship arms to the state of Chiapas, which borders on Guatemala, and the revolution will start from there.

Buenos Ayres, Argentina, July 7.—Local newspapers report another bloodless revolution in Paraguay. The garrison at Asuncion revolted and made a prisoner of President Jara, who forthwith resigned. Congress then selected Liberato Rojas, president of the senate, for provisional president pending new elections.

DECLARES TRUST RULINGS GOOD.

"Rule of Reason" Is Given Indorsement by Wickersham.

Battle Creek, Mich., July 7.—Attorney General Wickersham heartily indorsed the Supreme court's application of the "rule of reason" in its two recent decisions, in an address to the Michigan State Bar association.

"The most cursory examination of the decision in the tobacco case," said the speaker, "makes it perfectly apparent that the Sherman law has been demonstrated to be an actual and effective weapon for the destruction of trusts. It is settled by these decisions that no form of corporation, organization, merger or consolidation, can bar a federal court of equity from terminating an unlawful restraint or compelling the disintegration of a monopolistic combination."

HIDE THEIR MONEY IN GROUND.

Eskimos of Alaska Ask Opening of a Postal Bank.

Washington, July 7.—The Eskimos of St. Michaels, Alaska, through their chief, Richard Wood, petitioned Postmaster General Hitchcock for a postal savings bank.

"We have to hide our money in holes in the ground as there is no bank within 300 miles. Our people need a bank; we beseech you to build one here," wrote Chief Wood. Erickson, who signed himself as the arctic recorder of St. Michaels, countersigned the communication.

St. Michaels is on Norton sound, directly opposite Siberia.

TO DINE FARMER EDITORS.

Kewanee, Ill., July 7.—Illinois state board of agriculture will give a dinner in Chicago the latter part of this month to the editors of all farm papers in the United States according to arrangements completed by President George A. Anthony of this city.

ARBITRATION GIVEN A BOOST.

America and England Agree to Settle Large Pecuniary Claims.

Washington, July 7.—The principle of arbitration of international disputes, in so far as its application to the United States and Great Britain is concerned, received a pronounced impetus when Secretary of State Knox and Ambassador Bryce signed the first schedule of certain pecuniary claims existing between the United States and Great Britain and the terms of their submission to arbitration in accordance with the special agreement signed August 18 last.

The pecuniary claims to be arbitrated aggregate several million dollars. Some of them are of long standing, even antedating the war of 1812, while many grew out of the war in the Philippines. Others relate to fisheries and the Pribilof Islands.

Non-Sulphurous Himself.

Seeking needed and timely information, who wrote the editor of her Chicago paper and this is what he said and did: "How do you take the old-fashioned spring medicine, sulphur and molasses?" Is a question in materia medica passed along to us to answer by the editor of woman's page. But we don't take it, madam. We chase our oldest boy around the barn four or five times, corner him in the hen-house, and he takes it. We don't take it, and never could."—Buffalo Times.

Cast-Off Uniforms in Demand.

Much money is made out of cast-off police uniforms. Quantities are bought by African traders and exported to various parts of the "dark continent," where they are exchanged for palm-oil, ivory, skins and other merchandise. It is by no means an uncommon sight to see a swarthy savage dressed in the uniform of a London policeman, and wearing the regulation helmet of the force.—London Mail.

Sweet Drinks in Burma.

There are no soda fountains in Rangoon. A large amount of aerated water is sold throughout Burma. The English population consumes an immense quantity of soda for the national drink of whisky and soda, and also some ginger beer and bottled lemonade. The natives, however, prefer the highly sweetened and colored drinks, such as rose water, pineapple, cream soda, etc.

Probably Holds Record.

Mr. Elias Taylor, parish clerk of Fribourg, England, has retired on reaching the age of ninety, after fifty-one years of service. During his term of office he daily ascended the church tower to wind the clock. He discharged that duty 18,500 times, and climbed 100 miles of stairs.

Know Nature.

He who knows that secrets and virtues are in the ground, the waters, the heavens, and how to come at them—enchantments—is the rich and royal man.—Emerson.

Well Occupied.

Lady (engaging assistant gardener).—And if I engage you, besides your other duties, you will have to attend to the three dogs and clean out their kennels, also clean out the parrot's cage, clean up my son's workshop and clean both their bicycles; also clean the car except when the weather's dirty. Applicant (overwhelmed).—And shall I have to clean that?—Tattler.

New Laws in Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., July 7.—Many of the laws passed at the recent session of the Nebraska legislature went into effect today. One prohibits any person under the age of 18 from using tobacco in any form. Another prohibits all public exhibitions of hypnotism or mesmerism. Another provides heavy penalties for persons concerned

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

PRETTY—yes, I suppose she is. But, do you know, I never can bear to look at her long enough to find out. She's always squirming around so.

So a business man commented on a young girl in his office when I asked him if he didn't think she was pretty.

I quote the comment to show how some unpleasant little mannerism can counteract great charm. For the girl really is a very pretty girl.

And the reason I mention the matter at all is that it seems to me a good many of our young girls have unpleasant little mannerisms like this.

I know another girl who has a disagreeable trick of perpetually lifting her hands to her face. Now she rubs her eyes, now she puts her hand to her mouth or passes it across her cheek. This girl is a brilliant girl, an unusually interesting conversationalist and yet I know that her hearer's pleasure is often dissipated by this habit.

Just recently I heard of another girl who was discharged by a rather punctilious business man from her position as his stenographer because she was always taking out her comb and combing up her hair. "She's a good stenographer," he said, "but I want a girl who will arrange her toilet in the privacy of her home and not in my office."

Now, if any one of these girls should chance to read this article I have no fear that she would recognize herself, for the habit in each case had become, I am sure, almost unconscious.

But the part that puzzles me, the point I want to bring out is this: The families of these girls could not possibly have been unconscious of these unpleasant little mannerisms, could they?

And what were they thinking of to let them go on? What were they doing that they hadn't time to attend to such vital matters? You think "vital" is a pretty strong word for the occasion, I don't.

Just think. Beauty and brains and efficiency were each nullified by one foolish, unnecessary little habit that might have been so easily nipped in the bud by a little plain speaking.

Of course no outsider can criticize a habit like this without risk of being considered rude and intrusive.

But, equally of course, no family can afford not to speak out on such a matter.

One of the most important functions of the family, I think, is to give us, when we particularly need it, a chance to "see ourselves as others see us."

Nip the unpleasant little mannerism right in the bud. Nip it as gently as possible, but even if you cause a little temporary bitterness, nip it thoroughly, and in the end you will win lasting gratitude—or would I be safer in saying, deserve it?

WHEN ONE IS ENTERTAINING.

A dainty, inexpensive company salad is made by cutting cold boiled potatoes with a French scoop into balls, marinate with olive oil and vinegar, salt and pepper for an hour; then heap on head lettuce; sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve it with a boiled dressing or a mayonnaise.

Lettuce Salad With Cheese Balls.—Here is a salad which is so unusual that it will be welcome to the entertainer. Take a cream cheese and work into it sufficient cream to make it easy to mold into balls. Divide into four portions; color one green with chopped chives or parsley, another may be colored red by using the sweet red pepper pounded, a third may be colored yellow with the yolks of hard-boiled eggs, and a fourth may be made brown by adding chopped nuts. Mold into small balls and arrange in lettuce leaves. Two or more colors may be served together.

Strawberry Sponge.—Soak a box of gelatin in three tablespoonfuls of water until soft. Add an equal amount of hot water, is added to a cup of sugar and cooked until the sugar is dissolved, when the gelatin is added, the mixture is strained and a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a cupful of strawberry juice is added. As it thickens the whites of three eggs are beaten until stiff and one and a half cupfuls of thick cream are added. Mix lightly, not to lose the lightness of the eggs and cream. Turn into a mold, decorated with whole strawberries, and set away to chill.

Junket With Puree of Bananas.—Pare and slice two bananas, put through a ricer, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice, two of sugar and one of orange juice. Dissolve in a tablespoonful of gelatin in a tablespoonful of cold water; stir until dissolved, and pour the mixture into sherbet cups. When the fruit has hardened fill the cups with junket and set away to harden. Serve with whipped cream.

A young, beautiful, American girl who is known by the nom de guerre "Miss Janette" is winning favor in France by her daring flights. She has taken up flying as a profession. Kansas Corn.

William Allen White, the Kansas literature, praised, at a picnic in Emporia, the fertility of his native state. "It was a Kansas boy, you know," said Dr. White, "who tried to climb a cornstalk the other day to see how the corn was getting on. Unfortunately the stalk is growing faster than the boy can climb and he is now out of sight. A lot of neighbors with axes have been trying to cut the stalk down, but it grows so fast they can't strike it twice in the same place. 'I was feared for a while that the boy would starve to death, but I am happy to say that over the private wire in my office we have got news to the effect that the little chap has already thrown down five bushels of corn; whence one may infer that his diet, though monotonous, is adequate.'"

A LACE FICHU WITH SAILOR COLLAR BACK.

Instead of being simply long scarves to draw in folds over the shoulders, the modern fichus are beautifully shaped to give graceful lines. The back of this fichu is square like a sailor collar, the fronts being attached to this collar under insertions of lace. The long tab ends, pinned at the waist line, make the figure look taller and more slender.

HANDSOME FRENCH MODEL.
The lovely model shown in the sketch is of braided crepe de chine, showing a design in blue and gold, very soft in effect, with a trimming of tiny gold balls. The top of the skirt is of plain blue satin in a much deeper tint, and is repeated in the belt of soft straw as a facing and in the color of the plumes.

SIMPLE AND DAINTY.
This model is of foulard, showing a white ground with fine black stripes and clusters of black dots scattered over the stripes. It is made with the simple peasant waist, but both blouse and sleeves are piped with cherry red and decorated shaped pieces of black satin give a note of contrast at the lower part of the skirt and on the cuffs. Black soutache is used for the braiding.

A DARK FOULARD THE COOLEST CHOICE FOR SIGHTSEEING.

As an agreeable change from the eternal coat and suit skirt which, of course every traveler makes her standby costume, the little frock of foulard is an excellent selection. Such a dress, if of sufficiently dark color, will not show soil traces, and if of sufficiently quiet style will not be too dressy for general sightseeing wear. It will also be most delightfully cool and light and will not require the frequent pressings that make a linen costume rather expensive for the traveler. This foulard frock is black with a white stripe, and the attractive little vest effect is of orchid mauve silk.

REFINED COTTON SEED OIL GOOD SUBSTITUTE FOR OLIVE OIL.

Refined cotton seed oil is a very satisfactory substitute for olive oil. It is easily digested and very satisfactory in every way. For cooking it is much superior to lard and various substitutes that have been offered. The taste of fresh cotton seed oil is preferred by many to olive oil. It is cheaper than olive or peanut oil, and should be much more generally used.

The Skin and Not the Blood.

Until recently it has been a generally accepted proposition that eczema was a disease of the blood, and that in order to cure it, the blood must be purified and enriched by internal remedies. Careful experiments and scientific investigations have taught us that eczema is purely a skin disease, and curable through the skin alone. A great majority of persons afflicted with eczema have no other ailment, which is accepted as positive proof that it is purely a skin disease. Having established this fact, the chemists of the American Drug and Food Association set about to compound a prescription that would successfully treat this disease, and after much investigating brought out Meritol Eczema Remedy, the effect of which is marvelous. If you are afflicted with this loathsome disease, do not delay trying Meritol Eczema Remedy. You will be surprised at its prompt action, its soothing effect and its permanent results. Simple Talks on Health.

Running Your Physical Machinery.

TO judge by their actions, many people have peculiar notions about their body. They live contrary to all the fundamental rules of health, dose themselves with drugs to try to keep up the balance of health and vigor, and feel aggrieved meanwhile, because they believe themselves victims of some malicious fate. They will tell you in a resigned or vindictive tone, according to their temperament, that they have a beastly cold, or suffer from dyspepsia, or nerves, and imply by their tone that this unhappy state of affairs is none of their doing. When all the time, it is the direct result of things they have done or failed to do.

The body is a machine, a wonderful and marvelous machine, it is true, but nevertheless a machine. When it gets out of order, it seems wonderfully complex. Yet it can be kept in order by quite simple means. It only asks for certain things. The queer part of it is that we do not give it these things. We fail to keep the machine in order.

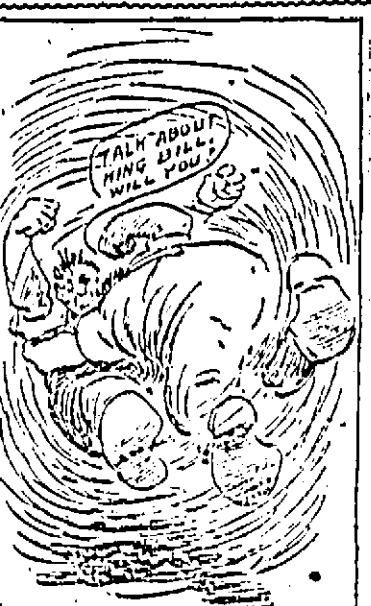

Yet any man or woman of any sense or brain capacity whatever, knows that to keep a machine in order, certain things must be done. And if he has a machine of iron or steel or wood, he'll do these things to keep it in order. And the more expensive it is, the more care he will take of it. Yet when it comes to the most wonderful machine of all, he is careless of it. He seems to think it will run itself.

A machine, as every one knows, needs to be kept clean, to be lubricated, to be fed with whatever it needs in the way of fuel, to make it go. The body needs this same treatment.

It needs to be kept clean both inside and outside, and this is not only a question of washing. It means drinking plenty of water that the system may be flushed, and breathing in plenty of oxygen that impurities may be expelled.

Nobody would put on a machine oil that gums. But many a person will put into the body, food that clogs—earthly matter that clogs up the joints and arteries, and makes them hard and stiff. Nearly every one over-eats and clogs the system in this way. Nearly every one eats and drinks injurious matter. Few drink enough water or breathe enough oxygen. Few keep the muscles supple by sufficient exercise. On all counts, they let the machinery of the body go wrong. The body needs cooling and cleaning the same as does a furnace. But how few do it as accurately. Then when the body goes wrong, they try to repair the mischief with drugs. Instead of getting at the root of the trouble, they continue the wrong way of living and hope to counteract the bad effects with pills. Men will smoke inordinately and take medicine for their heart. Women will sit all day in unventilated rooms, and take pills for their liver. Everybody rushes frantically and feverishly, and then take tonics for their nerves. Yet this wonderful machinery of our body would run smoothly and with power, if we would give it the few simple things it needs—fresh air, plenty of water, right food, sufficient exercise, sufficient rest. And when this machine is working as it should, life is good. But we let it get out of order, and so miss this good life, in order that we may have furniture that we do not need, in our homes, gowns that we do not wear, in our closet, and food that we cannot eat, on our tables.

WILLIAM AND MARY.

July 7.—William and Mary became a sort of a cathartic secret society of England when James II. let out on account of a religious argument with his subjects, that made a vacation in France look good to Jimmy. The King of France, Louis XIV, was in full sympathy with James and just to show what a good fellow he was he started a war with England to show Mr. John Bull that he did not like his table manners. The American end of the trouble is known in history as "King William's War," and commenced July 7, 1689, without any more warning than Russia got from the Japs. On the evening of that day a pair of squaws begged for a night's lodging at the home of Major Waldron, at Dover, New Hampshire. During the night they arose and let in a large number of Indians who lay in ambush, and Waldron was butchered. The town was sacked, the people were massacred and many were sold into slavery. This was the start of a war between the English Protestants and the French Catholics, that lasted, with occasional intervals of peace, for 70 years. Scores of villages and hundreds of lives were sacrificed before a treaty of peace was signed in 1767 at Byswick, a village near the Hague.

BRITZ HEADQUARTERS

BY MARVIN BARBER

ILLUSTRATIONS BY J. L. SMITH

"Pretty close call," he said, when speech was restored to him.

"What is it?" asked Britz.

"What is it?" exclaimed the doctor. "Well, only the most dangerous thing infinite wisdom has seen fit to place in that wonderful land of the East."

"Snake!" asked the detective.

"Snake!" cried Fitch. "That's not the word, man. It is the most poisonous serpent known to scientists—the terrible cobra of capello, of Hindostan. A single touch of its fangs is the beginning of the end—the way to a swift finish."

"Hurt much?" asked the detective, coolly.

"It is said to be the most frightful torture man can experience—death by a cobra's poison. Science has not yet found an antidote. If a rattler bites you, you may save your life with whiskey if you get it soon enough. When a cobra sets its teeth in you, you don't have time to drink the whiskey, even if the glass is at your lips, and nobody knows whether it would do any good if you had time to drink it."

A long low whistle was the detective's only expression of his appreciation of their predicament. His study of Oriental lore did not acquaint him with the characteristics of the cobra. But the doctor was a scientist, and Britz was willing to take the information on trust. It was a situation in which he felt he could afford to dispense with experimental knowledge.

The thick, beautifully rounded snake, when in color and slithering movement, apparently was not alarmed by the scramble of the doctor and the detective to the top of the chiffonier, nor even by the swing of the divan under the vigorous push of Fitch's foot. It lowered the head it had lifted a few inches from the floor, and continued its passage across the room; but, a short, dry laugh from the slouch evidently angered it more than any louder noise. It stopped midway of the room, turning its head once more toward the man on their narrow perch. An involuntary shiver ran through Fitch, and even Britz felt a little uncomfortable under the serpent's glittering gaze. The creature coiled itself in the center of the floor, its head lifted, and those beady eyes twinkling furiously. Then began a motion of the head like that of a waterspout to a point at least knee-high of a tall man. The head bent forward slightly, and the neck on both sides distended slowly until the loose flesh formed a sort of hood behind and slightly above both sides of the narrow, wicked forehead of the serpent.

"Look!" cried Fitch. "That is the unmistakable sign of a cobra, the deadly hooded snake of India. It is like no other member of the serpent family. When you see that hood commence to come out—don't walk to see the rest."

"About how long do you think it will stay there, doctor?" asked the detective.

"Until it either gets us or forgets us," answered the physician. "The distention of the skin about the neck in that way means that the beast is angry. Once it is thoroughly aroused, it never gives up until it strikes its victim, or is killed—unless something more startling happens to distract its attention."

"Rather looks as if we were trapped," Britz said.

"Somewhat," rejoined Fitch. "We're here to stay unless that reptile goes."

"Can we kill it, do you think?" asked the detective.

"We might if we had a machine gun—have you got a pistol?"

"I brought one into the room," answered Britz, feeling in his pockets, "but I laid it on that table when I was going through those drawers. Pretty careless, eh?"

Fitch nodded. He was racking his wits for some means of escape which meant, so far as he could see, a method of killing the snake. It seemed useless to expect help from outside the house. The door between the hall and the room in which they were was closed, and before it hung portieres heavy enough to muffle their loudest shouts. Their only probable chance of relief lay in the hope that the blue-coat would become sufficiently anxious at their failure to return and would enter the house in quest of them. Even in that rather remote contingency, however, it was far from certain they could warn him before the cobra could glide across the room and strike him to death. No, they were thrown utterly upon their own resources. Britz agreed with the doctor on that point, as in low tones, so that they might not further inflame the serpent, they discussed their situation.

"Guess there's nothing accidental about this little sunshine being in the room," said Britz mustily. "Those Oriental strong-armed probably figured it out that one or both of us would come here, and so they arranged this pleasing little surprise party. I think it is worthy a place in the society column as one of the successes of the season."

He made light of the danger because that was his way when he was in a particularly tight place; but he realized the peril by this time as fully as did the doctor. There was nothing humorous in the fact that all the time they were held prisoners atop the chiffonier by the gray death before them, the Hindoos were doubtless making the most of the time thus gained for escape. True, he had asked that all the ordinary avenues of escape from the city be watched, and although he took it for granted Chief Manning would carry out the request conscientiously, he was not at all confident the men sent from the Central Office and from the various precinct headquarters would be proof against the adroitness of Indian noblemen, adepts and thugs. Moreover, it was as good as certain that the Swami, the Prince, and their followers would not seek to flee the city by any ordinary route. Britz himself had been free to continue the pursuit, would have looked first to the most extraordinary modes of flight compatible with practical conditions. From what he knew of the men, by this time it would not amaze him greatly to find they had left the city by airship or submarine, slightly improbable as either means of transit might have been a few years before.

"Bottled up, doc!" he exclaimed gloomily.

"That's what it looks like," assented Fitch.

"Unless," Britz continued, "we can get that gun—"

"And use it effectively," put in Fitch. "I'm something of a shot," the detective ventured, meditatively. "Maybe I could hit it, and maybe I could get that gun."

His eyes, ranging the room in the immediate neighborhood of the chiffonier, had alighted upon the water pipe. The long, flexible rubber stem of the narghlee was stretched across the table and the mouthpiece hung over the back of a chair within a few feet of the top of the chiffonier.

"I'll try it," said the detective decisively. "Give a hand here, doc!"

out in an attempt to reach the tube of the water pipe. He withdrew his arm quickly, however, and gave a little nervous cough as the drab death that lay coiled in the middle of the floor straightened its sinister length and gilded itself once more directly under the spot where the detective's stretching fingers had been. Once more the head arose with that strange, sinuous, awaying motion, and it began to move slowly back and forth, while the glittering eyes seemed to shoot sparks toward the man who hung at such fearful hazard above it.

"Go!" said Britz. "This is getting a little too close for comfort. How far can that thing stretch, doctor?"

"No higher than that," answered Fitch. "At least, I think not. I understand the cobra can strike only straight forward."

"Sure it can't make an upper cut?" inquired the slouch.

"I'm not going to say positively. I'm not sure of anything with that kind of a brute," Fitch answered. "The best way is to take no chances. Let me have a try for the gun."

A bifurcated scarlet thread, the slender forked tongue of the reptile, darted in and out of its gaping jaws in a frenzied way. It was apparent to anyone—he be scientist or layman—that the serpent was in a white heat of fury. Was beside the human flesh that came within reach of that eager, death-dealing venom.

Britz, though he was known the length and breadth of the department as the coolest proposition under Manning's command, frankly shuddered as he watched the undulating menace of the serpent's body, and the staccato play of the tongue that seemed to mock him with the deadly humor of a fiend. He was willing to risk his life, if need be, to prevent the escape of the dark, subtle enemies whose demoniac ingenuity had caught him in such a trap, for trapped he seemed to be beyond the possibility of escape. That they had matched their cunning against his cold, hard, Occidental skill and common sense, only made him the more determined to outwit, outplay, outfight them.

"No, doc," said the detective firmly. "It was my fool carelessness that left that gun on that table, and it's up to me to get it. You hold me fast and sit tight, and if anybody gets stung, it'll be me."

Once again Britz, warily watching the snake, stretched forth his arm, stretched his fingers until he could almost feel them crack and strained his muscles almost beyond endurance, while his nerve was subjected to the severest test of all his experience. At last he nipped the smooth amber of the pipestem's mouthpiece between the tips of his first and second fingers. It was the slightest of grasps; but so steady were the nerves of the Headquarters man that although the cobra in its awaying seemed to approach ever nearer the arm and naked wrist that shrank involuntarily from the fancied death-thrust of those gleaming fangs, still he did not flinch. He clung to the pipestem, his fingers steadily drawing it toward him until he had a firm clutch on the rubber tube. Then with a powerful upward and backward heave, he regained his position on the chiffonier, the twisting hose gripped in his hand. The other end of the pipestem still was attached to the bowl of the narghlee. As the tube festooned between the table and the chiffonier, it went close to the head of the cobra. Lightning-like, the head dashed toward it, fangs bristling, and only a quick twitch of the detective's fingers snatched the stem beyond the reach of those poison-freighted ivory needles.

That jerk freed the other end of the tube from the pipe bowl, and Britz quickly looped it in his hands. Holding both ends of the long stem, he knotted a single loop in the middle and flung it like a double lariat upon the table beside the pistol. Slowly dragging the pipestem back, he pulled it, after several trials, about the chamber of the weapon. Then, handing one end of the tube to the doctor, Britz took hold of the other, explaining his purpose to Fitch in a few words. The detective stretched his arm away from the chiffonier at one end; the physician did the same at the other, and they stood pulling in opposite directions, thus tightening the loop about the pistol. When the grip of the tube on the weapon was firm enough, it was comparatively easy to swing the revolver from the table to the chiffonier. Britz gripped the gun with an intake of breath that betokened satisfaction.

"Now, then, doc," he said briskly. "Let's see if we can't put the reverse English on that Garden of Eden episode."

Britz, where the seed of the woman bruises the serpent with his heel."

"I would advise you to do your bruising at long distances," said Fitch, "and unless you have more cartridges about you, I wouldn't waste a shot. You won't find it easy to hit him."

Britz in a moment or two realized the doctor spoke true. The awaying, neutralized body was no easy mark for the most practiced marksman. His first shot went wide. The bullet imbedded itself in a leg of the table with a rasping sound that only infuriated the cobra the more. Britz's nerve slightly shaken by the miss, fired again quickly, delivered the howl of the narghlee, and caused the snake to oscillate more and more violently. It became apparent he would gain nothing by aiming at its head.

"I'll have a try at him 'midships," he said.

Only three loaded cartridges remained in the revolver, and as Britz found no extra ones in any of his pockets, he knew he must make the most of those he had. A third time the pistol cracked. The bullet grazed the serpent's flesh. It did not injure the spine. Quickly the upraised part of the body sank upon the coil, but it reared itself again in an instant, and the furious darting of the tongue revealed that the reptile was more enraged than ever.

"Want to take a crack at it, doc?" asked the detective, handing the weapon to the physician.

Fitch had no poor idea of himself as a fancy shot, but he found his muscular control too easily shaken by his narrow escape from the cobra to shoot straight. His shot—the fourth—was a wider miss than any of the detective's had been. He handed the pistol back to the Headquarters man and shook his head.

"You're the man to stay on the firing line," he said.

Britz eyed the revolver grimly. In its blue-steel chamber were four empty cartridges and only one that held the potentiality of release from their dangerously uncertain refuge on the chiffonier. Crooking his left arm, he used the angle made by his elbow as a rest and leveled the long blue barrel of the big-calibered weapon steadily. Pausing until the awaying of the serpent diminished as much as it apparently was going to do, he fired.

Lesson for Sunday, July 16th, 1911. Manassah's Wickedness and Penitence. 2 Chron. xxxiii:1-20.

Tonics Without Wine.

It is quite proper to give tonics at a dinner where no wine is served. As a substitute small glasses of sweet elder may be used, grape juice, fruit punch, which contains no liquor; orangeade or lemonade, or any one or another of the so-called "soft drinks." The drink is served in wine or champagne glasses at the proper time for the drinking of the tonics. Perhaps the nicest thing, in the opinion of many people, is white grape juice. It is very pretty, a pale amber color usually, and is particularly suitable for serving at dinner.

The Difference.

Why is it that when a small boy does something wrong, his mother always says: "I'll have your father wale you when he comes home to-night," but when a small girl does some forbidden thing, does ma say that dad will attend to her case? Not much. She simply calls her into the house, weeps over her waywardness, gives her a stick of candy and says: "Now, run along, darling, and Don't Ever Do It Again."

Cultivate Cheerfulness.

Age without cheerfulness is a Lapid winter without sun; and this spirit of cheerfulness should be encouraged in our youth if we would wish to have the benefit of it in our old age.—Colton.
